British Club Jews Off Refugee Ship

HAMBURG, Sept. 8 (AP)—The British government landed today 1206 of the Exodus 1947 Jews it barred from Palestine, but only after soldiers had clubbed or flailed scores who resisted a loudspeaker invitation to step peacefully onto German soil. Cries of "this is Hitlerism" came from the Jews as they boarded trains which carried them to the Poppendorf detention camp for future disposition according to nationality. The Jews disembarked today from the transport Ocean Vigour, one of three ships on which Britain returned the refugees from Palestine after overtaking their uncertified immigration ship, the Exodus 1947. They have been at sea virtually ever since they left France for Palestine July 10. The two remaining transports are due to unload tomorrow and Wednesday.

The disembarking began peacefully at 6:20 a. m. For almost three hours there was no visible sign of violence while refugees moved down the gangplank. Bearded men, boys, women, and slim young girls came ashore, some of them helped by bereted soldiers carrying luggage. The loudspeaker system played jazz—"Satrday Night is the Loneliest Night in the Week," and other tunes.

TROUBLE BELOW DECKS

There was some trouble below decks, however, and around 9 a. m. this became apparent to reporters held back at dockside vantage points. Recalcitrant men, women and children were dragged and pushed down the gangplank by soldiers wielding clubs and rubber truncheons, or "smackers."

In full view of the correspondents, troops beat the resisting Jews. Many refugees flailed their arms and shouted defiance as they were dumped on the dock and removed to the Poppendorf train. There were cries against being forced to come to "this land, which is a bloody graveyard of millions of Jews."

The refugees aboard the Ocean Vigour previously had been described by the British as "the most docile" of the Exodus 1947 passengers, and the beginning of the disembarkation operation appeared to bear out that judgment.

ERUPTS INTO TURMOIL

But suddenly, in full view of correspondents watching from the quay, the whole atmosphere changed. The refugees began to resist and British troops began swinging clubs and truncheons and dragging the resisters to the dock and the trains.

The whole dock erupted into turmoil. As the soldiers lugged the screaming, kicking, flailing refugees down the gangplank, the Jews already in the trains began shouting "Hitlerism."

Many refused to budge and some girls spat at the soldiers.

There were dockside rumors that the refugees had a lathe below decks and had fashioned a good many crude weapons.

Children on the Ocean Vigour displayed the same spirit of resistance as their elders. They refused to take the food offered them at the train, crying that the hands were those of Germans, the same hands which killed other Jews.

2 London Papers Rap Handling of Refugees

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP)—Two of this evening's London newspapers criticized the government's landing of "Exodus 1947" refugees in Germany.

"The Star called it, "A blunder of the first magnitude." The Evening News said, "No more stupid decision could have been made," and declared the Hamburg incidents would be "exaggerated and colored in America particularly."

"Mr. Ben Hecht and his buddies will smack their lips over the whole affair," said the News editorial, referring to the American writer who has been active in the movement to send Jews to Palestine. "Our soldiers are being given distateful and rotten jobs to do. A thoroughly bad decision by the British government has laid them open to slander and misrepresentation. We—and that includes the British Jews—are all sick of the nauseating attacks on Britain financed and bolstered up by extremists in New York."

'A-BOMB' REPORTED MADE FOR JEWS

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (INS)—The New York Daily Mirror said today the FBI is investigating a report that a group of scientists working in a Greenwich Village laboratory have developed synthetically an atom bomb for the Jewish underground in Palestine.

The Mirror said it was informed by Dr. Caleb Greene, New York physicist, that he headed the group of 11 researchers who developed the explosive according to a "theory of resonance."

He said, according to the Mirror, that the bomb left New York yesterday and should arrive in Palestine today.

The physicist told the Mirror that the Irgun Zvai Leumi approached him 18 months ago and asked him to head the project.

Harry L. Selden, co-chairman of the American League for a Free Palestine, told the Mirror that Palestine was rife with rumors of a Jewish atom bomb and that the Arabs seemed particularly impressed. He said he had no reason to believe the report, however.

'Great Ramah' Free as Magic Ends Charges

"The Great Ramah" worked his magic over the week-end and stepped from the courtroom today hand-in-hand with his most loyal disciple, a 71-year-old West End woman who originally charged he had threatened her life when she forced him to return her crystal ball, a gift from a Hindu of mystical powers.

Last Saturday, Jack Wirth, 54, Allston st., West End, a bona-fide member o fthe American Guild of Variety Artists as "The Great Ramah," told Judge Charles L. Carr that the charge of Mrs. Rosia Lehr, 71, manager of an Allston st. rooming house, was ridiculous.

"For five years," said he, "I was her darling and sweetheart. She even used to come down to my window and throw pebbles at it to attract my attention."

Mrs. Lehr had charged Wirth became angry when she demanded the return of her crystal ball. She tol dthe court he had said:

"I'll kill you. You won't live long. I swear it on my honor."

"Can you tell what's going to happen to you by looking in the crystal ball?" asked Judge Carr, addressing Wirth.

"No, I don't think so," said Wirth.

The court continued the case to this morning to permit Special Officers Walter Nickerson and Dennis Mahoney to secure additional witnesses and released Wirth in personal recognizance.

That was all "The Great Ramah" needed.

Today, before Judge Frank W. Tomasello who took the case because Judge Carr was busy, Mrs. Lehr said as long as she had her crystal ball back she wanted to drop the charges.

Although the answer wasn't written in the stars and didn't even dimly appear in the crystal ball, Wirth was happy with it—case dismissed.

Pope Gives 5-Point Morality Program

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 8 (AP)—Pope Pius XII told a throng of 250,000 Catholic worshipers gathered in St. Peter's sq. yesterday "the time for reflection and planning is past" in religious and moral fields and the "time for action" has arrived.

"The opposing fronts in the religious and moral fields are becoming ever more clearly defined," the Pontiff told the assemblage, which included 50,000 delegates to the Italian convention of Men of Catholic Action. "The time of test is here. Are you ready?"

While a plane dropped thousands of leaflets bearing the Ten Commandments on the vast throng, the Pope, his voice transmitted over a series of loud speakers, declared the battle in religious and moral fields hinged on five points:

Religious culture, the sanctifying of Sunday, the saving of the Christian family, social justice, and loyalty and truthfulness in dealings.

He added:

"Even a few seconds could decide the victory.

"It is disturbing to see to what extent fidelity and honesty have vanished in economic and social life.

"Greed for gain, stimulated and quickened by economic and financial crises, drives men to shortsighted speculation and practices which harm entire populations.

"We have always censured and condemned such dealings by whosoever perpetrated, and all illicit trade, all corruption, all disobedience to the just laws enacted by the State for the good of the civic community.

"A more just distribution of wealth is a high social aim worthy of your efforts. Its successful realization presupposes that individuals as well as groups have the same understandings for the rights and needs of others as they have for their own rights and their own needs."

Sex Fiend Kills Lawrence Girl, 7; Find Battered Body on River Bank

LAWRENCE, Sept. 8—Louise Anne Kurpiel, 7, of May st., who vanished at 7 o'clock last night after leaving a playmate's house around the corner from her home, was found battered to death at 7:15 a. m., her nearly nude body sprawled in a lonely hollow of trees and high grass, 300 yards west of the Joseph Casey Bridge, on the north side of the Merrimack river. Her sex-fiend murderer had slain her in maniacal fury, crushing the left side of her head and face, knocking out her teeth. The force of his brutish blows was such the little girl's head was pressed partly into the earth.

Twenty feet away police found a rock the size of a football, bloodied and bearing pieces of brain tissue. The child's lower undergarment had been flung five feet in another direction. Her ripped dress had been dragged up over her shoulders. Her torn clothing, the trampled grass and bruises on her body indicated she had struggled to the limit of her childish strength.

Police veterans, including detectives of many years of experience in homicide work, branded it the most appalling and demoniacal slaying in their careers.

They were working hard and fast on the best clue they had. A man told them that as he was walking across the bridge at 8 last night he saw the girl walking through the city parking lot, near the foot of Amesbury st., at the north end of the bridge, with a hatless man of about 40.

Police Chief Martin V. O'Sullivan said the witness had given a detailed and exact description of the clothing the little girl had worn to her death.

O'Sullivan stated further the police are satisfied they know the identity of Louise Anne's companion on the death walk.

SUSPECT VANISHES

State, city and county authorities were seeking the suspect this afternoon, but he had disappeared from his accustomed haunts.

The spot where the 7-year-old girl was killed is not far from a "jungle," where local and transient bums often repair to drink and cook food, near the end of the bridge.

Police did not identify the discoverer of the child's body other than to say he was questioned at length when he reported the find, for his head had been bandaged and there were evidence of blood on him.

A check disclosed he had been in a tavern brawl last night and injured so badly he had been taken to a hospital, where six stitches were required to close his scalp.

The murder inquiry was directed in part to the city parking lot, where an out of state car had been left all night. Police found near the murder spot a letter addressed to a man in that state. The car was under police guard.

SCREAMING HEARD

It appeared Louise Anne might have been slain only on hour after she had left the home of her playmate, Peggy Houlihan, 8, of Manchester st. Sgt. Charles Colanzo of Tampa, Fla., attached to the Army ordnance plant in the old Kalix mill, near the river bank, told police he heard a girl screaming at 8 p. m.

Colanzo said he was aware children used the lonely spot as a swimming and picnicking place, so he did not attach significance to the screams.

Louise Anne was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kurpiel, a misfortune-dogged couple who lost their first child, Paul, eight years ago, when he was four months old. The Kurpiels had lived in May st. only a year, going there when their rented house in Cambridge st. was sold and they were evicted. Mrs. Kurpiel had just given birth to a son, John.

Today the prostrated mother told of the last time she saw Louise Anne:

"I had to go to my job at a waitress at the Thatched Roof restaurant, opposite the North Andover airport, at 4 o'clock. We sent Louise to visit her chum, Peggy Houlihan.

"My husband took John to visit his mother, Mrs. Anna Kurpiel, at her home in Springfield st., South Lawrence. Louise promised to come home early. We had no fear for her. She never strayed away. And the Houlihans lived so close to us Louise often went there.

FATHER DAZED AT NEWS

"I can't imagine Louise walking off with a stranger, although she was a friendly child always."

The mother was too weak with grief to tell any more. Her husband, a carpenter and trucker's helper, was dazed by the frightful news.

Mrs. Patrick Houlihan, the playmate's mother, said the little Kurpiel girl had left their house at 7 p. m., and walked up Manchester st. toward the corner of May st. as she would naturally do on the way to her own house.

No one, so far as police could tell, had seen the child from then until an hour later, when the pedestrian walking across the bridge had noticed a girl in the parking lot with a hatless man.

A three-pronged manhunt was under way. Comr. of Public Safety Stokes, Dist. Atty. Cregg of Essex County and Lawrence police were collaborating in one of the most intensive investigations ever conducted here.

Dr. Alan Moritz, state pathologist; Dr. Joseph Walker, state chemist and Lt. Raymond Foley of the State Police, as well as fingerprint and photography experts, were taking part.

Threat of Second Water Main Break Seen by Officials

The bursting of a 24-inch water main near its juncture with a larger pipe line on the East Boston side of Chelsea Creek, which deprived residents of six communities of water for more than eight hours, may be duplicated at any time and at any place along the 100-year-old iron pipe line, Oliver Tornrose, superintendent of the Metropolitan Distribution Division, warned today.

Tornrose said engineers of the Metropolitan District Commission reported they had been trying for some years without success to obtain funds to build a cofferdam around the pipes. The present break, however, Tornrose said, was not due to the absence of a cofferdam.

FIRE HAZARD

Meanwhile, it was stated that a fire hazard still exists in sections of East Boston and Chelsea, pending completion of repairs estimated to take a week.

The only water flowing into the area is through another 100-year-old main under Saratoga st. Other areas affected were Revere, Malden, Medford and Everett.

The break occurred early Sunday, and shortly afterward thousands of persons, with all kinds of containers, appeared at police and fire stations and other places to get water for their homes.

Police estimated that 20,000 persons in East Boston and 10,000 in Chelsea were without water in their homes from 3 a. m. to 11 a. m., when the broken pipe was bypassed, and a diminished supply began flowing into the areas.

BARED AT EBB TIDE

The break occurred on the bed of Chelsea Creek where two 24-inch feeder pipelines come out of a big 36-inch main which crosses from Chelsea to East Boston at the foot of Brooks st.

A small break was first discovered about 1 p. m. Saturday by a watchman in a nearby boat yard, who saw water spouting from one of the pipes when it was bared by the ebbing tide, and notified the authorities.

An inspection was made and repairs were ordered, but before they could be made the pipe broke completely away from the bigger main in the early hours of the morning.

ACTRESS RITA HAYWORTH
Will Sue Welles for Divorce

Rita Hayworth To Divorce Orson Welles

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 8—There no longer need be any doubt that Rita Hayworth has no intentions of reconciling with Orson Welles.

Rita has asked her attorney, Frank Belcher, to go into court Wednesday morning and file suit for divorce from the self-styled genius.

This time she is getting herself completely free of Welles, who once before pleaded so hard she took him back.

There were rumors when the self-styled genius went to Europe that he would try to persuade the lovely redhead to take him back.

At the time of their second separation, when Rita went to Palm Springs, after leaving him, she said:

"It's too difficult to live with a genius. He is interested in everything about himself and nothing about his wife."

Welles in a recent interview in England said American movies were no good and spoke of how badly he had been treated by our Hollywood producers. This hasn't endeared him any to a town that has spent a fortune in putting his ideas on the screen without, so far, any financial return.

Auto Crash Kills Youth, 2 Injured

WORCESTER, Sept. 8 — A young man was instantly killed, his girl companion critically injured, and another youth less seriously hurt early today, when the car in which they were riding crashed into a parked truck in the downtown district.

The dead youth was identified by police as Norbert J. Le Boeuf, 22, of Cambridge st; the injured girl as Irene Holbrook, 20, of Harding st., and the other youth as Robert J. La Force, 21, of Fairfield st., all of Worcester.

Miss Holbrook was taken to Worcester City Hospital, where she was reported suffering from a compound fracture of the skull.

Ex-Pedlar's Kin Has Hope He'll Remember Charities

Miss Emelia Deferrari, 50, of Harvard st., Brookline, sister and sole surviving relative of John Deferrari, 84, mystery benefactor of a $1,000,000 fund to the Boston Public Library, today expressed regret that he had not remembered charitable projects among his own people in his own North End.

Deferrari, with a fortune amassed through shrewd speculation in securities and real estate, presented the munificent bequest to the library where spare-time reading, he said, helped him build up his fortune.

The gift, which is expected to grow eventually to $3,000,000, was made without any strings attached to it and will establish the John Deferrari Foundation as an irrevocable trust.

His younger sister, director of the Home for Italian Children in Centre st., Jamaica Plain, declared that John was as much a mystery to her as he has been to his North End neighbors.

"He didn't want anyone to interfere in his business affairs," she said. "I hope, however, he has made some provision for aiding the Center for Underprivileged Children in the North End and other charitable institutions in Boston which help people of Italian extraction."

It was reported that upon his death and the probate of his will other benefactions may be disclosed.

Miss Deferrari contradicted stories that her brother, a former fruit pedlar, had to leave school in the eighth grade to aid his parents, five brothers and three sisters.

"Our family always had plenty of money," she said. "My father was well established in the produce business and at one time owned all the blocks on Ferry st. in the North End. But he believed we children should know the value of money, so he made my brothers work.

"When he died, he left us each a part of his fortune. John invested his money well and multiplied his share. I'm sorry that he didn't remember some worthy charities also. I've argued with my brother many times but he has a mind of his own.

"Of course it's his money and he can do what he wants with it."

North End neighbors described Deferrari yesterday as "a real gentleman." Although he keeps the address at 4 and 5 Wesley pl., North End, he seldom remains there over night.

Mystery Blonde Flees Hospital

CHICAGO, Sept. 8 (AP)—An attractive blonde, about 25 years old, disappeared from American Hospital early today as police sought to identify her after finding her unconscious, with a fractured skull, on a North Side parkway. Her clothes also were missing from the hospital.

Police said they took the young woman to the hospital after seeing her lying on the grass at Montrose ave., east of Marine dr.

A nurse said the woman muttered the name "Jean Chester" and also "New York."

Jilted Italian Girl Gets U. S. Vet Bids

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 8 (INS)—The romance between an ex-GI and an Italian girl he sent for was on the rocks today minus wedding bells, but she had offers from 60 other former servicemen.

Her aunt, Mrs. Charles Mendola said: "We'll have to get a secretary to keep track of all the proposals if this keeps up."

The girl was Amalia Salamone, 19, of Palermo, Italy. The prospective groom was Michael J. Biarrio, 28, of Arlington. They discussed their marriage for two hours yesterday, decided it was best they forget about it, then went out for a soda.

Amalia has until Sept. 29 to marry some former serviceman, or be faced with the problem of returning to Palermo. Mrs. Mendola said her niece was interested in marrying only for love.

Mountain Hunt for Teacher Ends

MT. WASHINGTON, N. H., Sept. 8—State police ended their search on lofty Mt. Washington today for missing Dorothy T. Wilder, 48, Ashby, Mass., school teacher, convinced that she was alive and somewhere in Maine.

A weekend search of the mountain's trails and lodges failed to disclose any trace of the absent teacher, who disappeared after parking her auto at the base of the peak. She was last seen climbing toward the summit.

Her father, Albert, told police he had checked reports his daughter had been seen in Maine and was convinced that they were well founded.

Police in Rumford, Me., continued to check the possibility a woman who spent the night in the lobby of the Rumford Hotel, refusing to answer questions of clerks or police, might be the missing teacher.

The woman asked a Rumford minister direction to Antigonish, N. S., saying she wanted to visit a college there. She boarded a bus for Nova Scotia in Rumford, but left it in Dixfield.

Police Hunt Young Wife Of Veteran

A 19-year-old Cambridge Coast Guard veteran turned to police today in the search for his wife, Mrs. Jacqueline Ferguson, 20, mother of his two-months-old son, who disappeared two weeks ago from their home in Brookline st.

Richard J. Ferguson, the husband, who served in Greenland, described his wife as five feet tall, weighing 122 pounds, with brown eyes and hair, wearing a blue skirt, white blouse and black patent leather shoes.

He said he had delayed reporting her disappearance because she had disappeared twice before and had always returned safe.

Ferguson's mother said the missing mother is believed to have gone off with an Essex st., Cambridge, girl friend, with whom she had once before disappeared for two weeks.

Young Mrs. Ferguson is believed to have had with her $30 given her by her husband and $25 pay she had received as a waitress in a Cambridge lunchroom.

State Workers Bid For Boost in Pay

President Edward L. McDonough of the Massachusetts State Employes' Ass'n today requested an interview with Gov. Bradford to discuss the effect of the increased cost of living on low-salaried state employes.

"There is no doubt that when the majority of the Legislature voted against temporary salary increases for state employes last June they did not expect the extraordinary rise in costs that has since developed," the association declared today.

"The shocking increases in costs of even the bare necessities has amazed all and the promise of higher prices to come presents a picture of conditions altogether intolerable," the statement continued.

"The coming months present a dismal prospect for the low-salaried state workers and it is this group that is in the great majority. It is apparent that unless relief is provided, the forthcoming months will hold only deprivation and indebtedness for many."

Marriage First To Beauty Queen; Lucky Guy Picked

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 8 (AP)—A girl who knows what she wants, the new Miss America, is building her plans around marriage to a medical student already being greeted as "Lucky Guy" by his classmates, and the usual stage and screen contracts are going begging.

Tall and brunette, Barbara Jo Walker, 21, of Memphis, Tenn., won the title "Miss America, 1947" over 53 others. They represented 39 states, 14 cities and Canada.

"I do not care much for movies," Miss Walker said at her first news conference as reigning beauty. "Very few people are successful at it and I do not care to wait around Hollywood for years trying to be successful."

STICKS TO STUDIES

With the $5000 scholarship she won, Miss Walker plans to complete her studies at Memphis State College, marry John "Lucky Guy" Hummel, 23, a medical student at the University of Tennessee College of Medicine, and then:

"I want to take my master's degree at a university close to John's hospital.

"It takes about 12 years for a doctor to get started," explained the poised, five-foot seven-inch beauty. "The pageant people are going to arrange my schooling so that I'll be near his hospital."

Then she may become a college instructor in French and English.

At Memphis, Hummel said Barbara had telephoned him the wedding "will probably be next fall." He said he met Barbara two years ago and had his first date with her last year at a Memphis Cotton Carnival dance.

BEST OF JUDGES

"They ought to make me a judge next year because I can pick 'em quicker than they can," said the elated "Lucky Guy."

Barbara Jo's father, R. H. Walker, operator of a Memphis dental laboratory, said his daughter "even gets a kick out of mowing the lawn." Her mother said "she loves to cook, has designed her own hats for years and knows how to sew."

Before returning to Memphis late this month, the new Miss America will spend 10 days beginning Sunday as a guest of the Mexican government during Mexico's Independence Day celebration in Mexico City.

Tropical Storm Off New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 8 (AP)—The U. S. Weather Bureau at New Orleans said at 10 a. m. in its second advisory today that a small tropical storm is central about 100 miles east of New Orleans.

The advisory said the storm was expected to pass inland between Biloxi, Miss., and Pascagoula, Miss., about noon today.

It is reported moving northwestward 12 to 15 miles per hour. Strongest winds were estimated between 50 and 60 miles per hour in heavier squalls within 25 miles east and north of the center.

Crowds Inspect British Warships in Hub Visit

Hundreds of citizens trooped to the Boston Navy Yard to visit and inspect the British cruiser Sheffield, which played a major part in the sinking of the German battleship Bismarck in 1944, and the sloop Snipe, both here for a week's courtesy visit.

The ships will sponsor a children's party, with members of neighborhood boys' and girls' clubs in Greater Boston as guests.

COURTESY ON THE ROAD---MAYBE

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 8 (AP)—Columbia's city engineer W. Sid Tomlinson thinks motorists would behave better if their name and address were printed on the side of their automobiles.

Thompson has suggested a law requiring drivers' names and addresses be printed in six-inch letters. He believes the plan would make drivers "think twice before cutting in and out of traffic, honking unduly, or otherwise impeding the general flow of traffic." He thinks it would help police in tracking violators; help parents keep track of junior when he had the car, and "you would have the satisfaction of knowing just who you were cussing out when you leaned out the window to tell off another driver."

Double Check Girl's Story of Killing Dad

GILMANTON, N. H., Sept. 8—County investigators, frankly seeking loopholes in the "confession" of Barbara Roberts that she killed and buried her father single-handed, questioned several persons today and at least five discrepancies in the girl's story were claimed.

Meanwhile, the name of a 25-year-old Ashland youth was officially listed as "wanted for questioning," and police in the entire county were ordered into the search for him.

His mother, however, insisted her son was probably only away from home over the weekend, as is his custom, and she told sheriff's deputies he would almost certainly be home by late tonight. He is due to go to work on the 11 p. m. swing shift at an Ashland mill tonight, and is reputed to be a steady worker.

If he is not located by late today it was indicated an all-out search will be pressed throughout New England to pick him up.

At Belknap County jail in Laconia, 20-year-old Barbara remained a model prisoner in the opinion of the keepers and investigators who first took her story of how she killed her father, Sylvester Roberts, 52, in their lonely farm outside this village.

She was visited for a half-hour by County Atty William W. Keller, but the brevity of his visit indicated no serious attempt to

Actor Slashes Painting of Model Friend

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 8—Magician and movie actor John Calvert's appreciation of art stops when an artist paints a revealing picture of a lady friend.

The painting by Edward Withers, retired president of the California Art Club, was slashed to ribbons by Calvert, who saw it hanging on the wall of a friend's apartment.

The subject of the painting, Carol Janis, is a model who also assisted John in his magic act from time to time. The painting won the gold medal of the Painters and Sculptors Club, but was barred from the Los Angeles County museum after Withers engaged in a bitter argument with the museum's officials.

When I questioned Withers about the portrait, he at first denied the story, but later admitted Calvert had knifed his prize painting to ribbons. When I asked if he would sue the actor-magician, who left for New York immediately after the slashing, Withers said:

"For personal reasons I will not bring a suit, because it would hurt innocent people, but Miss Janis was never more than just a model, and I am very sorry the thing happened. I'm also shocked at such a display of temper for so little reason."

Injured Woman Wins $300, Key to City

A leg injury suffered on St. Patrick's Day last year when she stepped into a sidewalk hole brought an award of $300 from the City of Boston today for Mrs. David Montane, of Hunnewell ave., Brighton.

Although a claim had been made for her, Mrs. Montaine told City Treasurer Henry Brennan she was reluctant to accept the award. He prevailed on her to take it and then introduced her to Temporary Mayor John B. Hynes, who presented her with a key to the city.

Convert in U.S. Now Bishop Of Sweden

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 8 (INS)—Most Rev. Dom Knut Ansgar Nelson, O. S. B., D. C., who came to the United States in 1930 and became converted to the Catholic faith, was consecrated today as Auxiliary Bishop of Sweden.

Officially, he was consecrated as titular bishop of Birta and coadjutor bishop-elect to the vicar apostolic of Sweden.

The ceremonies at the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul was preceded by a colorful procession of prelates from the rectory of Bishop Francis P. Keough, bishop of Providence, at the rear of the cathedral.

Participating in the historic ceremonies were Most Rev. Dom Theodor Ansgar Suhr, O. S. B., D. D., vicar of Denmark, and Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, D. D., apostolic delegate to the United States and Archbishop of Laeodicea.

Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, preached the sermon.

Bishop Nelson, a native of Denmark, came to America in 1930. He became converted to the Catholic faith a short time later and joined the Benedictine Order. After study, he was ordained May 22, 1937, at the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul.

For six years he headed the classical department at the Priory School, Portsmouth.

Army, Navy to Join in Hub Constitution Day Program

The Armed Forces will join churches, schools, veteran and civic organizations in celebrating on Sept. 17 the 160th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution. Elaborate plans are being made by federal, state and city leaders.

Citizens will be bidden in state and city proclamations to re-read the principles upon which our government was founded as the surest way of preserving our democratic way of life.

The city's observance will center in the schools where 130,000 public and parochial pupils will observe the day with pageantry and special exercises. A huge outdoor observance by the city will be held on historic Boston Common with a band concert, speeches and fireworks.

The Regular Army, Navy and Air Corps will also take part in observance of the day. The Army will hold an exhibition of modern weapons on the Common while the Navy will hold special exercises aboard the U. S. S. Constitution now tied up at the Navy Yard.

In special ceremonies, the graves of Rufus King and Nathaniel Gorham, Massachusetts' two signers of the Constitution, will be decorated.

The Boston public school exercises are being directed by the school committee and Supt. of Schools Arthur L. Gould. The Rev. Cornelius Sherlock, diocesan director of parochial schools is in charge of the observance in Catholic schools.

Before leaving for Indianapolis, National Comdr. James O'Neil of the American Legion, pledged the fullest co-operation of the Legion in marking the day appropriately.

The state will mark the day with a proclamation by Gov. Bradford, one of whose ancestors was a governor of Plymouth Colony. Temporary Mayor John B. Hynes likewise will proclaim the day and call on all citizens to join in the nation-wide observance.

The day will mark a re-dedication of all Americans to the principle of free government embodied in the Constitution.

Reds Vote Against UN Atomic Plans

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 8 (AP)—The main sections of the second report of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission were approved today by a majority of 10 countries in the commission's political committee. Russia voted against all sections, her satellite Poland, against all but one.

The political committee thus completed action on broad proposals for setting up and operating an international atomic control agency. The delegates have worked steadily at this task since early in May.

Fast Change Artist Given Jail Term

Charles Lucas, 39, Columbus ave., South End, will spend the next 21 months in the House of Correction regretting his talent for fast talking and equally fast change-making.

Though he pleaded not guilty to four counts of larceny and three counts of attempted larceny by confusing storekeepers out of making the correct change for small purchases, Lucas was found guilty by Judge Charles A. Brown of East Boston court and sentenced to seven consecutive three-month terms.

Ernest Meads, a storekeeper in Prescott st., East Boston, found himself done out of a $5 bill after Lucas had purchased two bags of potato chips, offering a $5 bill in payment, got the change, then retrieved the bill by suddenly presenting a quarter and asking to be given the bill back.

Evelyn Hanson, 18, Woodlawn st., Everett, was given a two-month suspended sentence today and placed on probation for six months by Judge Charles L. Carr following her plea of guilty Saturday to eight counts of larceny by posing as a saleswoman in a department store basement and keeping money given to her for purchases.

The court expressed regret its intention of teaching the girl the consequences of stealing by keeping her in jail over the weekend had been defeated when she was bailed in $50 late Saturday by an Everett woman friend.

After a plea for leniency by her father, a machinist, and by her spiritual adviser, the court instructed her to pay [illegible] and repay the $83 she had stolen from eight known customers. He forbade restitution by the father.

Nectar on Flowers Gone, Hornets Are Picknickers

WARWICK, Sept. 8 (AP)—The Mt. Grace picnic spot has been closed to the public because of hornet attacks last week.

The insect raids were believed aimed at picnickers and their food baskets probably because of a lack of nectar on wild flowers.

Pkg. of 3 29c

It's an amazing new development you'll find you can't do without! A white parchment cloth that becomes pliable as chamois when wet. It never absorbs any dirt or grease so you can rinse it clean in a jiffy. It dries snowy white within an hour. Use it with soap or scouring powder. It's especially perforated to make suds in a flash. For greasy dishes, for sink, stove, bathroom, to remove leg make-up or lipstick, there's nothing to match it! Each is good for 6 weeks of daily normal use.

5 Flights Up, Cops Nab Talky Blonde

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP)—A slender, blue-eyed blonde upheld the honor of her sex today by getting in the last word with a male acquaintance—and it took four radio cars, a police emergency squad and a hook and ladder fire company to make her give up the one-way conversation.

Police said the young woman, who refused to give her name, clambered up a fire escape to talk through a window to a merchant seaman who lived on the upper floor of a five-story apartment in the midtown area.

Neighbors, believing she intended to jump from the fire escape, called police and firemen. Detectives escorted the young woman to the street. The seaman, who said he did not want to talk to anyone, went back to sleep.

Slaying Story

shake her story of shooting her father to save herself from harm and then dragging his body to the barn to drop it through loose boards in the sheep pen.

Barbara was reported much calmer today as she looked forward to incarceration in the combination jail and county farm until the Belknap County grand jury convenes in October to weigh a murder indictment against her.

First, and most significant, was the statement of Sheriff Homer Crockett that he has questioned Barbara's youngest brother, William, 16. He said the boy told him he returned to the Roberts farm only a few minutes after the shooting.

Barbara, in her signed confession, said she let her father's body lie on the kitchen floor for an hour while she sat alone in the house before dragging it unaided in'o the barn.

Investigators also pointed out that the girl set the time of the shooting at 6 p. m. last Dec. 23, and said she heard her father coming up the road raging in anger and saw him approach the house.

At that hour in winter, they said, it would be too dark to see a figure outdoors, and storm windows would prevent a voice from penetrating into the farm kitchen.

BOARDS NAILED DOWN

The spot Barbara pointed out, in a re-enactment of the crime, as the point where she dropped her father's body through loose boards on the barn floor, is at least 20 to 25 feet from wheer the corpse was found. The boards over the corpse were nailed down securely, according to investigators.

While the girl told of shooting the merchant mariner to death and waiting for an hour to remove his lifeless body, an autosy has revealed to date only one bullet wound—in the lower spinal column. It was severe enough to cause partial paralysis and unconsciousness but not death, the probers asserted.

Sylvester Roberts habitually wore a wedding ring with a silver "snake type" ring on the same finger, and had a wrist watch, yet neither rings nor watch were found on the skeleton. His wallet and a distinctive type of green bag he carried with personal effects were also missing.

Investigators said the bank accounts of the Roberts family in Laconia would be checked without delay. Each o fthe seagoing members of the family, Sylvester and his sons, Lt. Com. Charles and Petty Officer Robert, sent money home for safekeeping and accumulated a sizable sum, it was reported.

Barbara had a steady boy friend known to many neighbors here as well as to friends in nearby communities, investigators were told, and her romantic interest will be thoroughly probed.

Sunday Magazine Tells Health Aids

What medical experiments has science been conducting to improve your health? What forward steps have been taken in the fight to aid sufferers of migraine headaches, polio or deafness?

G. B. Lal, science editor, answers these questions in a helpful medical article, "Remedies for Migrane, Polio, Deafness," in next Sunday's American Weekly, magazine issued with all editions of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Another valuable feature in next Sunday's American Weekly will be "Be Sure Your Hair Dye Is Harmless," which warns women that they must consider their health before any excessive demands of art, beauty or fashion.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THE SOLUTION OFFERED by the United Nations Palestine commission seems to be as good as could be expected. Palestine is to be partitioned into two states, one Arab, the other Jewish. These states, while politically independent of each other, are to be joined in an economic union which is essential if both areas are to live.

The holy places of the Christians in Jerusalem and Bethlehem are to be under a separate trusteeship, which is only just. Neither the Jews nor Moslems would wish to deprive the Christians of their holy places, although Jerusalem was once the capital of a great Jewish state headed by such kings as David and Solomon.

The British are to remain for an interim period. The full responsibility, however, for setting up of new states would rest in the United Nations, which could call upon member states to assist in the task.

It is a statesmanlike report which meets current problems without ignoring basic principles. Palestine can no longer be regarded solely as Arab. Actually, it has been Turkish and a British mandate under the League of Nations, but it has not been Arabic. The Jews have not only proved that they are serious in their determination to build it as a modern country, but Jewish youth has risked its life in classical heroism to hold it. The terrorism of the Irgun is distasteful, but so undoubtedly was the terrorism of the Maccabees, who withstood the mightiest power of their day. While even Jewish leadership feared that the Irgun would so spoil their case as to ruin it, the fact remains that heroism in a good cause, no matter how brutal and unnecessary, wins advocates and defenders.

THE UN COMMISSION proposed 150,000 immigrants during the next two years. That falls a little short of Jewish aspirations; it comes very much higher than the Arabs hoped would be granted. The Arabs fear that an increasing Jewish population will make the Jewish state too strong. The Jews would like to move as many displaced Jews from Europe as Palestine will hold.

Views on this subject vary. Some say that Palestine cannot maintain a large population; the Zionists claim that reclamation work in the desert, the exploitation of the Dead Sea and industrialization will make it possible for Palestine to hold several millions.

ACTUALLY, if the Arabs and the Jews find that the members of the United Nations are determined upon this program, they will arrange means to live together in peace. As recently as the end of World War I the Arabs were subject to Turkish rule, and the Jews, who lived among them, had fewer troubles than many of their brethren in Europe. In language, religion and many basic customs and traditions, these peoples, stemming from a common ancestry, are similar.

Of course, the European Jew has had a different cultural development from the Asiatic and African Arab. Violence between Jews and Arabs appeared in recent years and reflected European antagonisms and often were stimulated by European agitators for purposes that could benefit neither Arab nor Jew.

At any rate the UN proposal is the first practical solution of the Jewish problem. It recognizes the Zionist aspiration for a Jewish national state in Palestine but it also recognizes that the Arab and the Christians have rights in that area.

It closes that period in Jewish history during which many Jews were unwilling to agree to a Jewish state lest it imperil their status in the countries of their birth.

The establishment of a Jewish state under the United Nations in no way affects the citizenship of a person of Jewish religion in such countries as the United States or Great Britain. On the other hand, Jews in countries which treat them horribly will have a sanctuary, a place of refuge, without being forced to beg entrance at the gates of unwilling hosts. It may even end the agitation pro and con over anti-Semitism, for no Jew, whether a citizen of Palestine or of any other country, will fail to benefit from the dignity which must come to his people from a national existence, particularly if the Palestinian experiment justifies itself by cultural and economic achievements.

Gary School Race Bias Strike Eases

GARY, Ind., Sept. 8 (AP)—A slight increase today in attendance was reported at Emerson High School, where most of the student body refused to register last week in a protest against admission of negro pupils for the first time.

Indications of a gradual return of the pupils followed a week-end of pulpit pleas by Catholic and Protestant clergymen for an end to the strike.

A sub-district meeting of CIO-Steel Workers adopted a resolution yesterday condemning the demonstration.

Joel Eddy, 54, retired merchant arrested Saturday, was released today on a $10,000 bond. He was charged with violating the new state "anti-hate" law by encouraging pupils to indulge in mass truancy at Emerson school.

EXPERIENCE IS THE BEST TEACHER... IN DEEP-SEA FISHING... IN CIGARETTES TOO! CAMELS SUIT ME TO A 'T'

More people are smoking CAMELS than ever before!

REMEMBER? When people stood in line to get cigarettes, they took whatever brand they could get. That's when so many more smokers learned Camels suit them best.

Yes, experience during the wartime cigarette shortage taught millions the differences in cigarette quality!

● Mrs. Dorothy Newstead speaking: "During the wartime cigarette shortage, I smoked many different brands. And that's when I found that Camels suit my 'T-Zone' best!"

You and millions of other smokers, Mrs. Newstead, found yourselves comparing brands. And that full, rich flavor and the cool mildness of Camels found a happy welcome in many, many "T-Zones."

Result: More people are smoking Camels than ever before.

Try Camels. See how they suit your taste . . . your throat. Let your own experience tell you why, with smoker after smoker who has compared, Camels are the "Choice of Experience."

T for Taste...
T for Throat...
That's your proving ground for any cigarette. See if Camels don't suit your T-Zone to a "T."

According to a Nationwide survey:

MORE DOCTORS SMOKE CAMELS than any other cigarette

● Three nationally known independent research organizations asked 113,597 doctors—in every branch of medicine—to name the cigarette they smoked. More doctors named Camel than any other brand.

Chandler Sent To Danbury Cell

Douglas Chandler, 57, expatriate American ex-newsman, sentenced to life imprisonment and fined $10,000 for treasonous wartime propaganda broadcasts from Germany, departed today for the federal prison in Danbury, Ct., in the company of two U. S. deputy marshals to begin serving his term pending an appeal.

Accompanied by his counsel, Atty. Claude B. Cross, Chandler presented to Federal Judge Francis J. W. Ford a petition signed by himself, asking withdrawal of a motion to stay execution of sentence pending the appeal. The request was granted.

Chandler, held until now in East Cambridge jail, was greeted at the federal courtroom entrance by his daughter, Loretta, who had filled a suitcase with clothing and food for her father.

MR. BEVIN'S NONSENSE

By E. F. TOMPKINS

FOREIGN MINISTER BEVIN caused a lot of needless excitement by his light-hearted—and light-minded—suggestion that the United States continue its unrequited benefactions abroad by giving away its gold supply.

The Labor Statesman plainly showed that he knew very little about our gold hoard, and even less about the role that gold may play in establishing and sustaining stable currencies among the trading nations of the world.

Mr. Bevin seemed to think that our twenty-one billion dollars worth of the yellow metal—"valued" at the New Deal's inflated price of thirty-five dollars an ounce—is all "free gold" laying idle at Fort Knox.

In point of fact, although it is against the law for an American citizen to possess monetary gold or bullion and our domestic transactions are conducted with printing-press money and excessive bank credits, the New Deal itself has been making some use of the gold.

The bulk of it has been hypothecated to support the New Deal's own fiscal manipulations, mainly as "reserves" against Federal Reserve commitments, and a little of it even as "backing" for some of the Government's fiat money.

Moreover, in international finance the American dollar is still convertible for gold.

The total amount of "free" gold, which we could give away without further disrupting our own disorderly fiscal affairs, is LESS THAN TWO BILLION DOLLARS, which would have very little or no effect abroad.

Lastly, if we could give away the whole hoard, it would—experienced observers have noted—be merely sold back to us at thirty-five dollars an ounce, the dollars being used by foreigners to buy more American commodities and thus increase the price inflation in our home markets.

What Foreign Secretary Bevin really asked for is more gifts of AMERICAN DOLLARS to go the way of the $3,750,000,000 British loan which his government has already virtually exhausted.

The so-called "dollar shortage" around the world is in actuality a shortage of goods to use and exchange, and goods are short because the beggar nations, under the influence of Socialism, are not working enough to serve their own necessities or to utilize their own resources.

The late Yorkshire strikes in Great Britain, with production already way off and with another demoralizing winter coal famine impending, are a worse affliction than the mythical "dollar shortage."

A BUCKETFUL OF COAL IS WORTH MORE IN EUROPE TODAY, FROM A PRACTICAL SENSE, THAN A SCOOPFUL OF GOLD. THE DIFFICULTY IS THAT SOMEBODY HAS TO WORK TO PROVIDE THE COAL.

The world also undoubtedly needs stable currencies, in terms of gold, but this does not mean that the United States can stabilize all the currencies of an improvident world.

TOO LATE

THE LATEST FINDING of the House Committee on Un-American Activities is that the so-called "Civil Rights Congress" is a Communist front.

Some of the "notable" persons whom the Congressional Committee has identified as acknowledged sponsors of the outfit are loud in their protests against its—and their—exposure. Evidently, some were not ashamed of their activity but are ashamed at being caught.

Anyone who lent the use of his name to this Congress, or otherwise participated in its existence, had a moral duty to know what kind of organization it was.

If he knew, and wilfully became a part of it, he must bear the full responsibility for his own action.

If he did not know what he was doing, by what qualification does he, as a university teacher or minister of religion or labor leader, set himself up as a public adviser?

—JOSEPHINE BENEDICT.

WHILE ROMPING about in the surf, my girl friend had her gaiety suddenly interrupted by a bite from a stingaree. These dastardly denizens of the deep are terrific stingers. Their sting often has serious after effects. Fortunately my girl friend pulled her foot away with alacrity and was not as badly stung as she might have been.

But it was bad enough and resulted in considerable pain and apprehension as to after effects. Beaches where stingarees abound should have warning signs. None do, however. The chambers of commerce of stingaree infested beach resorts believe this would keep bathers away. That is the wrong angle. Such places should work out ways of lessening the stingaree menace. I believe some type of foot protection could be originated which would make the stingaree's sting ineffective.

ASKING Queries from Clients. Q—Has there ever been a left-handed major league second baseman? A—Hal Chase once played second base for Cincinnati. Q—Have you ever been to Utica, N. Y.? A—Yes, indeed. But not lately. Is the Fort Schuyler Club still active there?

Irene Dunne

And, how about that cafe that bore the quaint name of "The Same Old Place"? Q—Who is your favorite film star? A—Still Irene Dunne. But I have been wavering a little ever since I saw Wendy Hiller in "Pygmalion." Wendy is going to appear on the stage in Manhattan in the fall. I'll be there early the first night she appears.

MULES & MEN: How about the boys who wear glasses? Does the necessity of their being equipped with spectacles affect their standing with the fair sex? What is the extent of the enthusiasm with which girls welcome passes from boys who wear glasses? When a spectacle wearer kisses a girl good night, should he remove his glasses? These are the queries put to us by a young fellow who has recently found it necessary to wear spectacles. I regret our Mules & Men department has entirely overlooked the problems confronting boys who wear glasses in their social contacts with the females of the species. However, steps are being taken to rectify this state of affairs.

HE HAS A DOG—Did I ever tell you we have a dog? Seems to me I did mention it once. Anyway, our Springer spaniel, a handsome animal, seems to have an irresistible attraction for beautiful young women. Even in Manhattan, where the local beauties are generally haughty and aloof, smart lookers pause to pat our pup. His response is wonderful to behold. He looks soulfully up at the patter with his big brown eyes registering great appreciation and wags his tail lovingly. I have noticed the better looking the feminine admirer is, the faster he wags his tail. A remarkable animal. It would seem a good looking Springer spaniel would be a definite asset to a bachelor. It would undoubtedly be the means of his meeting some very interesting people.

HORSES & WOMEN—The statuesque Doris Duke is three inches taller than her recently acquired husband. Nevertheless, she promised to "obey" her short type spouse. This is not surprising. Tall girls are always looking for a man who will sweep them off their feet and make them obey. Lengthy women are generally clinging vine types. They are "yes, dear" wives. They like to sit on their husbands' laps, talk baby talk and feel helpless. The petite types are the fiery rebels of the matrimonial scene. During the wooing period the crafty cute, little tricks cuddle, caress and cling to a man and make him feel like a sturdy oak. But after marriage, the girls of five feet in height and thereabouts swing into action and strive to take charge of the domestic situation. They usually succeed.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL! Carl Brisson claims the world's most prolific cat is a Copenhagen feline, who in a period of 10 years gave birth to 118 kittens. "I know this cat personally," said Mr. Brisson proudly . . . Sheila is a nice name. It's a wonder more girls don't have it . . . Have noted a number of male celebrities have been asked their opinion of the long skirt style. But nobody has put this query to Ben Hecht, noted author and deep thinker. Mr. Hecht is an authority on feminine styles. His father and mother ran a dress shop in Racine, Wis., called Paris Fashion.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8—Any tendency to rely on the intelligence of the American common man should be corrected now that he is being poked into little twitches of irritation over high prices and shortages.

Westbrook Pegler

A year hence, he might be goaded to violent furies against the trusts or monopolies as the authors of his woes. He might hurt himself.

This inflation was started by President Roosevelt. It had almost matured when President Truman was stuck with it.

It grew out of the 40-hour week which was advertised as a plan to spread the work. The real purpose was to drive more millions of the faceless people into Roosevelt's political subsidiaries, the AFL and the CIO.

This was a grant or concession practically the same as those rights of exploitation which the British government issued to development companies in the creation of the empire.

It was almost as though the Government had given the B.P.O.E. the right to a cash bounty on each of some 12 million jobs as a starter and a first lien of anywhere from 50 cents to $5 a week on the earnings of all those people.

THE INTELLIGENCE and political ability of the American citizen never have been lower than they were in his submission to these and similar offenses against his manhood and citizenship.

The spectacle that he made of himself was the more humiliating because he had been boasting of the fantastic amounts which he had squandered on test-tubes, hypodermics, white mice and white jumpers for high school laboratories, auditoriums with regular professional batteries of theatrical lights and nylon football pants in confectioners' colors for football teams which played in colossal arenas. Education was a major industry in the United States.

The 40-hour week began to look out of place when the Government started to grab millions of young men from their jobs for the war and shut down many industries and stores by declaring that they were unessential.

If a citizen had spent 25 years building up a private business and now, suddenly, had to junk it and offer himself for wages at some utterly strange trade in a war factory, he was slow to understand why the work was still limited to 40 hours a week for each hand.

AT THAT STAGE, even some of the most bell-gerent bosses of the union racket were ready to give up on the 40-hour week. But not Roosevelt. His idolators write over and over that he knew the American people well and loved them.

He certainly did know us well, but no other ruler ever had quite the contempt for his subjects. He not only stuck to his 40-hour week but he invoked the draft law to compel many of us to join his unions and pay graft to his racketeers, a portion of which went to his party funds.

If men did not take "essential" jobs, they could be called up for the Army or Navy.

In order to get these jobs, however, the citizens had to accept any union arrangements that had been made by Roosevelt's Government and pay any amounts demanded of them.

It came down to this, that if an American citizen refused to bow to the dictatorship of a union and pay political squeeze to Roosevelt's party, he could be impressed into the Army, like a London Cockney of 100 years ago.

AFTER DEC. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor Day, the American citizen objected to strikes. In a way he had a sense that if it really was necessary to shut up so many lines of business and ruin so many unoffending merchants in order to force people to work in the war factories, it was a sin to let goons pull out key workers on strike, without even consulting them, and thus make it impossible for thousands of others to go on with their tasks.

It also seemed that overtime now ought to go by the board because we ought to work three shifts every 24 hours and seven days a week. No work done on a Sunday or after midnight was any more difficult or more valuable to the country than work done on a Monday afternoon.

Roosevelt pulled another of his fast ones. He made a deal with the big union fakers promising them "union security" through the War Labor Board, continuing the 40-hour week and granting the employes "vacations with pay" in return for a memorable "no strike pledge."

The "no strike pledge" was honored in the breach more than 10,000 times, but we will never know exactly how many strikes there were.

Most of them were "repudiated" as "wildcat" strikes but they were strikes just the same.

The rates of pay were idiotic. The scale jumped more than 100 per cent from the normal figures, on the whole, and 200 per cent in many cases when overtime was paid for eight-hour tricks.

That is how we got our inflation.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, MON., SEPT. 8, 1947

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 8—You'll soon be seeing Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., on the 20th lot and in a very interesting assignment. He is supplanting Cornel Wilde in Betty Grable's next picture, "The Lady In Ermine."

Doug Fairbanks, Jr.

Darryl Zanuck, who personally engaged Douglas, Jr., paid a young fortune to Fairbanks' Independent company to get their star. Doug was getting "The O'Flynns" ready for his own company, but most stars these days would rather be working for a major studio than for themselves with the English market what it is.

Cornel Wilde is out of the picture because he didn't want anything to interfere with his present second honeymoon. If Pat Wilde gave up a picture, he figured he should do the same. Ernst Lubitsch felt, too, that young Doug was the perfect romantic figure required in this Graustarkian epic, which starts Oct. 13.

VERY INTERESTING is the deal David O. Selznick has just made with RKO to release "Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House," the first picture he will release outside his own product.

"Blandings" is one of Dore Schary's top RKO movies and has such an imposing cast as Cary Grant, Myrna Loy and Melvyn Douglas.

The formal joint announcement, sent out by N. Peter Rathvon for RKO and Daniel O'Shea for Selznick, states that Selznick will retain 60 per cent and RKO 40 per cent interest in "Blandings." This is apart from the distribution terms, which are not announced.

In deciding to release a limited number of outside pictures, David said he would consider only those he felt had the promise of outstanding quality and were capable of multimillion grosses.

COMPLETELY surprising is the selection of Jim Davis, tall, handsome actor, as Bette Davis' leading man for "Winter Meeting." In Jim's last picture, "The Romance of Rosie Ridge," he played a heavy.

Although he has been around Hollywood for some time, Davis has never really had much of a chance, but his test was good and that's all that counts.

Richard Widmark, of "Kiss of Death" fame, who flew out here to try for the Davis picture, could not arrange to make the film, so he was counted out. Roy Calhoun was another contender. In fact, there has been a lot of competition among Hollywood's movie heroes for the role opposite Bette.

"KNOCK ON ANY DOOR," by Willard Motley, one of the most powerful novels dealing with juvenile delinquency, has been bought by Mark Hellinger for $50,000. "Knock on Any Door" isn't a pleasant story—it's a heart-breaking one, but it's the kind of thing Mark does well.

He'll make a great picture and not everyone could do it justice. Mark won't modify it, he'll tell the story as it is without any softening, and at the same time he'll help wallop the evils of unhappy childhood.

SUSAN PETERS could look the whole world over and not find a story better suited to her than Nellie Revell's autobiography, "Right Off the Chest." Nellie, too, has been bedridden, following an accident in 1917. Susan has bought the rights to Nellie's book, with Nellie sharing in the profits.

Until she made "Sign of the Ram," Susan didn't know whether or not she'd ever be well enough again to face a camera and endure the arduous days of rehearsal. But she came out with such flying colors that she now wants to make "Right Off the Chest."

Nellie had a struggle as a columnist and commentator and she tells all that in her book. Once a top press agent, she also tells about the show business throughout her 30 years' experience.

JUST BEFORE Gregory Ratoff took the plane for Italy he signed Nancy Guild to play opposite George Sanders in "Gaghostro." Greg left with his divorce decree from Eugenie Leontovich, and the promise that Nancy would leave for Italy in 10 days. She'll be gone four months.

If I were a betting woman I'd wager my last year's chapeau to your new 1948 model that Nancy's recent bridegroom, Charles Russell, will also have a part in Edward Small's movie. Greg, who is a good friend of Darryl Zanuck, borrowed Nancy from 20th, and Russell is under contract to the same studio.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: The very hottest romance in this very hot town at this very moment is that of Janis Paige, Warner actress, and Frank Martinelli, Jr., of San Francisco.

Frank's dad owns the Bal Tabarin night club in San Francisco, and Janis met him while she was doing personal appearances in the bay city.

Ever since that time it's been a series of long distance phone calls and orchids. Frank is here over the week-end to see her and will remain until her birthday next week.

THE RECEPTION given Harry Richman at Ciro's was heart-warming and sincere. He sang song after song and was called back again and again.

Ciro's was filled to the rafters with old and new friends; Sophie Tucker, Harry's old-time partner, Joseph Schenck, George Jessel, Bebe Daniels, Ben Lyon, the Henry Ginsbergs, and Mrs. Moe Annenberg, wife of the late publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer, all old friends, were warmly greeted by Richman.

Frank Sinatra, Evie and Van Johnson, Marie McDonald, whose house was almost burnod down that day; Rudy Vallee, Jose Iturbi, Gracie Allen and George Burns and the Joseph Pasternaks, almost broke the tables applauding. Richman is as good today as he was when I first knew him.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Pat Dane and Lou Wertheimer an interesting dinner duo.

You may expect Buddy Westmore and Rosemary Lane to kiss and make up any edition.

Angela Lansbury

Angela Lansbury has gone to New York to see if she can find a play on account of she is disgusted with her screen career.

Hedy Lamarr was also talking about a Broadway engagement, but that was before the advent of Mark Stevens into her life. Now I don't believe she will leave Hollywood.

Allen Jenkins and Lillian Kinela, air hostess, very, very happy in a secluded corner at the Seacombers.

The two George Marshalls, one the well known director and the other the owner of the Redskins, finally met and were luncheon guests of Bob Hope. They have been getting each other's mail for years. George, the Redskin Marshall, is of course the laundry millionaire who married Corinne Griffith.

A cute tennis twosome is Sammy Goldwyn, Jr., and Vanessa Brown. They met at the Darryl Zanuck party.

The love light in Jane Nigh's eyes, once kindled by Dave Rose, is now fanned by the smile of John Lindsey. Lindsey, a promising young architect, is one of eight selected to design model homes throughout the country.

When Wallace Beery sailed for Cairo, the pretty girl who kissed him good-by at the boat was Louise Bannister. Wally is already in Cairo and having himself a time.

Charlie Chaplin is preparing to go to Mexico for a vacation, but denies he is remaining there.

The late Evalyn Walsh McLean's Ned and Jock, and their wives, are visiting Hollywood friends. Mrs. Ned McLean was Gloria Hatrick, daughter of Ed Hatrick, Hearst executive. Ed, who is quite sick in a Denver sanitorium, is reported much better, which is good news.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 8—I am writing this in the spirit of a modern Lancelot—to save a blonde and beautiful young actress named Wilma Francis from the hallucination that she is a mystic, gifted with occult powers.

It will come as a shock to Miss Francis to learn she is not in league with the evil one, but it will prove to be a public service. She was on her way to becoming a veiled but voluble sceress from whom all her friends would flee shuddering.

The thing also provides a great object lesson. It demonstrates how otherwise normal people can become convinced they are mystics, with powers of peering behind life's dark curtain.

In this instance it started as an after-dinner game, designed to while away the non-dancable interlude while the chocolate souffle was digesting. This was at the home of Leon Gordon, the solemn-panned movie man who produced "Mrs. Parkington," "The Green Years," etc., and who wrote "White Cargo," in which Tondelaya keeps insisting she is a good broad and will stick around.

ALSO PRESENT were James K. McGuinness, the large MGM executive, and his beauteous missus, Lucie; Mrs. John Considine, Jr., the former Carmen Pantages, who came alone because her producer husband is bedded down with a croaking cold that can be heard for blocks these still nights; Mr. and Mrs. William Burrows of Dallas, a couple of out-of-towners named Dixon and Joseph Timothy Patrick Sullivan, lineal descendant, begorra, of Tammany Hall's Big Tim Sullivan.

Joseph Timothy Patrick, etc., who is also the big owner of Jamaica racetrack, suggested we play a game where one dope—I mean guest—leaves the room and the others all touch some object and then the sucker comes in and tries to guess what they touched.

Most of the male guests, including Mrs. Dixon's husband, exhibited a desire to touch Miss Francis, but our hostess, the gorgeous Mrs. Georgia Gordon, insisted prudishly it might be better if we stuck to inanimate objects. There is always one stiff-neck at every party.

Most of us had our turn, fading lamentably, except Mrs. Considine, but it turned out later that Joseph Timothy Patrick had sneakingly poin'ed out the object to her, wishing to curry favor because he has been living on the cuff with the Considines, thereby saving hotel extortions.

All this time Miss Francis had been squirming impatiently on her settee. Finally she burst out:

"Let me try it! A lot of my friends say I have psychic powers."

When she left the room, Mr. Sullivan leered ghoulishly and whispered:

"This is what we've been waiting for! In any crowd there's always one who thinks she has hidden powers of divination. We have uncovered our sucker. No matter what she touches when she comes in we will say she is right!"

WELL, MISS FRANCIS swayed in, looking hauntingeyed. She surveyed the room with veiled gaze, then slowly wheeled and pointed to the mantel clock.

We all voiced consternation. Then, to make it look good, we accused our hostess of being in cahoots. Miss Francis denied having any collaborator.

"It is the weirdest thing," she said, "but I knew it was the clock. It kept pounding in my ears: 'This is it! This is it!'"

We denounced it as a fluke and Miss Francis insisted on trying again. This time she pointed to a porcelain duck. We pretended to be aghast at her powers. Finally, after she had unerringly picked out five more objects, including Mrs. McGuinness' right earring, Mr. Gordon said:

"This has gone far enough. It's too frightening. I do not believe in trifling with the powers of darkness."

We agreed it was delving into something that had better remain hidden, whereupon Miss Francis rendered us helpless with suppressed laughter by declaring tragically:

"You are right. I have always known I possessed these powers but I have tried never to use them consciously. I pray I shall never use them for evil."

Relax, Miss Francis, you ain't no psychic. As Dan Parker used to say, a psychic is a detective's partner.

SEN. PAT McCARRAN, of Nevada, who has just passed his 71st birthday, informs me that he is listing his age henceforth as 17. The white-haired solon, who looks so much like a senator that people are loath to believe he is one, adds:

"I am just moving the digits around a little."

U. S. Denies Italy Red Revolt Report

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (INS)

The War and State Departments said today they have no knowledge of a secret report outlining plans for a Communist revolution in Italy after American troops withdraw from that country.

The denials were issued after high-ranking officers had read published accounts of a secret report telling of an "underground Italian-Slav army" ready to seize Northern Italy when American troops evacuate.

W. R. Hearst War on Reds Praised in Amvet Citation

Special to the Boston Evening American

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8—For the outstanding work of the Hearst newspapers in battling Communism, the American Veterans of World War II presented a special citation to William Randolph Hearst.

The citation was accepted on behalf of his father by Randolph Apperson Hearst, who was a captain in the Air Transport Command during the war.

In making the presentation in the Los Angeles Examiner lobby, William A. Burkett, past commander of the Amvets, declared:

"I deem it a great pleasure to be called upon to make this presentation.

LAUDS WAR ON REDS

"This citation is the expression of appreciation of the Amvets for the tremendous job Mr. Hearst has done to combat inroads of Communism within our country.

"We of the Amvets are grateful that such a large group of newspapers have been guided by a man who has the fortitude to expose that which is attempting to strangle the United States.

"We are more than happy to join in the fight to stamp out this vicious Communist fifth column.

"It is only fitting that such a presentation should be made in front of this honor roll of Examiner employes who served in World War II, and it is with deep respect I give you, Capt. Randolph Hearst, this citation honoring your father."

WILL CONTINUE FIGHT

In accepting the honor certificate, Capt. Hearst thanked Mr. Burkett and other Amvet officials including their new state commander, Prentice G. Smith—and assured them the Hearst newspapers would continue their fight against un-American activities.

One of the first citations presented to an individual by the Amvets the certificate read:

"In recognition of distinguished and co-operative service rendered the community and veterans of World War II, the honorable William Randolph Hearst is hereby awarded this citation."

The award was voted by California state dept. of the Amvets in convention assembled and was signed by William A. Burkett, commander at the time it was adopted.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP)—Three persons were injured, one critically, when the Republic Seabee amphibian plane in which they were flying from Fitchburg, Mass., to Toledo, crashed three miles northeast of Potter.

The three, all from Fitchburg, are in a Canandaigua hospital. They are: Paul Kenneth Dudley, 30, owner and pilot, severe head lacerations and several fractured ribs; Richard Garvey, 18, in critical condition with a brain concussion, fractured left leg and left foot, and cuts and bruises, and Norman Larrabee, 30, multiple fractures of the right leg, foot and ankle and body cuts and bruises.

Dudley told State Trooper R. C. Keeley the plane struck a vertical draft and nosed 1200 feet into a field.

Landlady on Fast to Force U. S. to Let Her Raise Rent

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 8 (AP)—With the avowed purpose of fasting until she gets relief from federal rent agencies, a 73-year-old landlady took to her bed last Thursday and has eaten nothing since, neighbors reported.

Mrs. Anna E. Boyer said she intended to fast to the death, if necessary, to gain recognition of her plight in which she says her outgo is greater than her income. The latter, she told reporters, is not enough to buy food, particularly at present day prices.

When interviewed in her bed in a meagerly furnished cubbyhole on the second floor of her house, Mrs. Boyer said:

"Me and Gandhi. I just hope I die before my bones stick out like his."

She also observed, "Man's inhumanity to man grows greater . . . I am not eligible under the Marshall plan for Europe. "I'm just a forgotten American."

Mrs. Boyer said she bought the house with the last of the money left her by her husband and that rent officials permitted her to rent a four-room basement apartment with bath for $9.50 a month, a first-floor, five-room apartment with bath for $16 monthly, and a similar second-floor apartment for $10.

Her expenses, she said, are $28.13 monthly for mortgage payments, $8.90 monthly on a bank loan, $2.75 to $5 for water, $16 annually for insurance, $35 annually for county taxes and $45 annually for city taxes.

Except for a little food, she said, she has spent nothing on herself in the past two years except to "buy two cheap pairs of shoes and a dress. I made the dress myself."

Rent officials could not be reached immediately for comment.

Eddie Duchin to Wed British Tennis Player

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP)—Pianist Eddie Duchin says he and a widow, Mrs. Maria Teresa Winn, well known in tennis circles in Hawaii and London, plan to be married at a date not yet decided.

Grand Rabbi Korff Seeks to Free Son

Grand Rabbi Jacob I. Korff of Woodrow ave., Dorchester, head of the Boston Orthodox Jewish Rabbinate, announced today he would seek immediate release of his son, Rabbi Baruch D. Korff, co-chairman of the American Political Action Committee for Palestine, held by Paris police in connection with a reported plot to bomb London.

The captured rabbi was last in Boston June 29, when he officiated at the wedding of his sister Betty Jean to David Berkowitz of Bridgeport, Ct., at Temple Beth Hiller, Dorchester.

He left for Europe late in July leaving his wife and two children at their New York home.

"My first efforts to aid my son will be to seek the facts," the father stated today. "I have been aware of my son's interest and enthusiasm for the Jewish cause, but I have never heard his name linked with underground Jewish organizations."

HIS THANK YOU

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Sept. 8 (AP)—Driving home to Philadelphia from this resort, U. S. Atty. Gleeson gave a ride to a man carrying a lunch pail.

When they pulled up at the man's house, the hitch-hiker opened up the pail and gave Gleeson two beautiful orchids.

"Here, give these to the missus," he said, explaining he works at an orchid farm and always carries some blossoms to show his appreciation for a ride.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 8 (AP)—A race-track operator reported to police he was robbed of $15,000 by three masked bandits who forced him to tell where the money was concealed by torturing his wife.

Police Capt. Fred W. Clarke said Henry Green, 54, vice-president of Beulah Park track in Columbus, Ascot Park in Akron and a track in Hamilton, O., related he finally disclosed the money was hid in a shoe box after one of the gunmen placed a lighted cigaret on Mrs. Green's thigh.

The trio then drove off in Green's 1947 Cadillac

Sandwiches Children Like In School Lunch Boxes

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

SCHOOL DAYS are almost here again, and it will soon be time to pack the daily lunch box. Report cards and lunch menus are often closely related, and you may be able to build up your child's scholastic standing by packing nourishing and appetizing meals for him to take to school.

Meat, cheese and eggs for sandwich fillings, milk or cocoa in a vacuum bottle, fruit and a simple cake or cookie make a high nutrition basic menu that can be varied enough to avoid monotony.

Change the kind of bread used in sandwiches occasionally, and use very small rolls split, and put together with the fillings one in a while. Cut generous slices of bread leave the crusts on, and butter slices well especially when dry fillings are used. Cutting the sandwiches in halves simplifies eating.

Wrap fruit, sandwiches and cookies separately, and remember to tuck a paper cup for milk in the box. If milk is obtainable at school, then you can occasionally use the vacuum bottle for soup.

Here are suggestions for lunch box treats that children will like:

SANDWICH FILLINGS

1 Sliced chicken ham, or other cold meat.

2 Chopped chicken or ham with celery and mayonnaise.

3 Chopped roast meat with green pepper, sweet pickle, and prepared mustard.

4 Cooked liver (mashed) or chicken giblets (chopped), with chopped bacon, seasoned with chili sauce or pepper relish.

5 Sliced or chopped tongue with minced cabbage or watercress and mayonnaise.

6 Sardines mashed with hard-cooked egg yolks, lemon juice, and Worcestershire sauce.

7 Hard-cooked egg (chopped), minced onion mayonnaise.

8 Hard-cooked egg chopped with pimentos and green peppers, chili sauce, mayonnaise.

9—Hard-cooked egg (chopped or sliced), chopped bacon or shredded dried beef, minced celery, mayonnaise.

10 Sliced hard-cooked egg sliced tomato, mayonnaise.

11 Cream cheese, chopped stuffed olive, minced celery, cream or milk to moisten.

12—Cream cheese, chopped pimiento, chopped green pepper, chopped nut meats or celery, cream or milk to moisten.

13—Cream cheese, sliced tomato.

14—Cream cheese, sliced or chopped dates.

15—American cheese, sliced or minced pimiento.

16 Sliced tomato, chopped or sliced bacon, watercress or lettuce, mayonnaise.

17—Ground raw carrot, chopped cabbage and celery, with or without peanut butter, mayonnaise.

18—Cream cheese with orange marmalade, currant jelly, strawberry jam, cranberry jelly, or drained crushed pineapple.

19 Chopped dates and nuts moistened with cream or orange juice.

20—Peanut butter and grape jelly or cherry jam.

MOLASSES BROWNIES

1 ½ cups (15-oz can) sweetened condensed milk

1 cup molasses

2 cups graham cracker crumbs

1 cup chopped nut meats

Mix sweetened condensed milk and molasses in heavy pan and cook over low heat 5 minutes or until mixture thickens, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add graham cracker crumbs and chopped nut meats, blending thoroughly. Spread mixture in pan (8 x 12 inches) lined with waxed paper. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg F.) 15 minutes or until brown. Turn from pan and remove paper at once. Cut in 2-inch squares. Makes about 24.

THEATER SUIT . . . with footlight spotlight of its own . . . is this Jo Copeland original fashioned of John Walther's precise black and white birdseye wool. The black velvet club collar and black velvet arrow accents on the jacket front to outline the curved pocket slits increase the suit's charm . . . as well as dramatize the interesting fabric. And don't ignore the skirt length . . . not this season.—R. M.

Top Creams at Half Price

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

TRIMMING DOESN'T MAKE A DRESS . . . and makeup doesn't make a beautiful face. They help . . . to be sure . . . but they are not the end, only the means to the desired end. The cut of a dress stamps it stunning or sloppy . . . and complexion cleanness stamps a facial personality as beautiful or bumpy.

As there is a right and a wrong way of life . . . there is a right and a wrong way of achieving complexion cleanliness . . . without which beauty's battle isn't even challenged. A slap and a dash of this or that cream administered with a prayer . . . or the soap routine indiscriminately applied . . . doesn't always effect a scrupulously clean skin, the kind upon which complexion beauty is predicated.

The first and initial point of importance is to decide accurately what type of skin you have before you attempt to clean it as it should be cleaned if it is to be willingly receptive to artifices.

Yes, we know! We do so much harping on a clean, clean, CLEAN face . . . that it gets almost boring to read. But no beauty aid . . . sincere in the purpose of her job . . . can do otherwise in making women conscious of the necessity of doing the proper job for the best results. Too many women fall into the unadmirable habit of caring enough about keeping a spanking clean face at all times. Then they wonder why their complexions do them dirt . . . but literally!

REMOVES EVERY TRACE OF GRIME

Because a clean skin is the very basis of beauty . . . you use lots more cleansing creams . . . or should . . . than any other aid to beauty. And it is no valid argument to rationalize yourself into improper cleansing by using the feeble argument that good creams are too expensive. The ones under discussion today may be had through the end of this month only . . . for half their original price tag. Whether it is the salon cold cream . . . the dry-skin cleanser . . . or the liquefying cream for oily skin . . . you can select your own-skin-type purifier at an unprohibitive price to effect a cleansing routine that is certain to reward hand-some dividends.

If your skin is looking drab and dry . . . help brighten and at the same time clean it with the dry-skin cleanser. This luscious cream removes every trace of grime . . . and helps soften the complexion simultaneously. Dry-skin cleanser helps banish flaky, dry bits to induce a more youthfully soft and more appealing skin.

If you have a medium dry complexion . . . or a problem skin with dry and oily patches . . . use the salon cold cream . . . a wonderfully fluffy and bland cleanser that leaves the face delightfully clean and fresh. Here is a fine all-purpose cream that may be used by daughter and mother alike. It is a pet cleansing cream of oh, so many fastidious gals.

For complexion plagued by busy oil glands . . . we recommend the liquefying cleansing cream . . . a light but thorough cleanser which serves as a great aid in helping erase excess oil and in coaxing coarse complexions back to the ranks of finer and softer-looking expanses.

For the names of these skin-type creams, half-price at $1 for this month only, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, any day except Sunday, or write to me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TO BE A coming attraction . . . as come-hitherly beautiful as Warner starlet Gale Robbins and her youthful facial freshness . . . a gal must put her best face forward. Which means, beauty-wise, a complexion properly cleansed with the proper creams . . . and at least three times a day. Facial charm is predicated on the know-how with the know-with of specific cosmetics.

Her Wedding Costume

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am planning to be married this winter. Would you please tell me what shades are suitable for a wedding dress? I am having an informal wedding. Also, how many dresses will I need to take on my two-week honeymoon? Do I keep my gloves on during the ceremony? Will it be all right if I wear my wedding suit as a going-away outfit?

MARION B

Dear Marion:

If you are having an informal wedding, there is no reason why you couldn't wear your wedding suit as a going-away outfit.

How many dresses you will need on your two-week honeymoon depends on the type of place where you expect to spend this period. If you are going to an expensive resort, you will naturally need many more changes and more formal clothes than you will require at an informal place. Not knowing your plans, I am afraid I can't answer this question any more definitely.

As to wearing gloves during your wedding ceremony, the leading authorities on etiquette consider this purely a matter of choice.

Draped Turban in Satin and Velvet

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

MEN WHO rate women's hats among the evidences of a decadent civilization will usually, when pressed, admit that they do like some hats. That kind with the hoopies and the thingamabobs that sort of comes around and twists over and has roses and can't too big and doesn't look silly," is the way they describe the ideal hat.

Translated, this means a hat that is quiet and lovely, colorful, a hat that fits onto the head, that is more conventional than spectacular, soft rather than sophisticated. To name a perennial favorite, the draped turban.

This style flatters most women. It is adaptable to various types of costume. Best of all, it's a comfortable style both in the secure way it hugs the head and the feeling of fashion-rightness it gives the wearer.

Braidcard designed the draped turban sketched today. Bottle green velvet and light green satin are turned and twisted up from the forehead to give height to the turban. A large pink rose adds to its loveliness.

Home Garden Forum

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Head of the Vegetable Garden Department, Norfolk County Agricultural School

Q—Can hardy annual seeds be planted in the fall?

A—This practice is sometimes used by gardeners but the results vary depending on the season. Lettuce and spinach, if planted late in the season and covered with a straw mulch, will winter over and make a quick start if spring conditions are favorable. During most seasons it is not worth the extra effort.

Q—Our soil is clay and packs badly. Can this soil be improved?

A—The best way to improve clay soil is to work in large amounts of organic matter in the form of green manure and cover crops. If green manure is used the use of lime is also helpful, and on low land coal ashes will improve its physical condition.

Q—I have been told to plant my tomatoes on new sod land. Is this a good practice?

A—Sod land that has been fall plowed is good for tomatoes. This new land seems to be more free of disease than old garden land.

Q—Can petunia seed be planted in the fall?

A—Petunias often seed in naturally in the fall. As the seed germinates very slowly, the plants are generally late in blooming.

Q—Our corn is only filled out on one side.

A—This is caused by poor pollination. During the last few weeks pollination has been poor due to extreme heat and dry weather.

Howdy, folks! I'm home again after one solid mont' of flirtin' wild perfect health on Cape Cod ware soon the frost will be on the pumpkin an' the corn in the shock an' pappa's gold watch in hock if the toorist seáson wuzn't good! It seems ta me we got things cock-eyed in this world. Wen the weather is good, we should drop everythin' an' go out an' enjoy it. The poor people should get some kinda break fer such matters on accounta they need it the most. Insted, we make ourselves slaves ta businesses an' machines an' wear out like old jaloppies. Wen will people ketch on? Take me fer instance; I'm rested an' as pink as a can of new salmon. I'm rarin' to knock off several months of hard work with the prospects of takin' off again wen I need ta. Fer example, awreddy I got my entertainment program fer the season at my Grille witch is goin' ta hum like a 3-ring circus speeded up. I'm gonna MAKE a business this fall! At the Rex Grille, winin' an' dinin' place of the South End sofisticates, I been engaged in redecoratin' an' now I got the showplace of the district. Nuttin's too good fer the roomin' house characters I got fer customers there! Come rain or shine, before or after football games, wakes, christenin's, bar mitzvahs an' the like, the gayest gay afternoon an' nite spot is Ort's Grille, 25 Essex St.

Cole Bridal Oct. 4

VIVACIOUS AND PRETTY Eleanor Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Cole of Brookby Farm, Wenham, has had a number of interesting jobs since making her debut in 1943, but is giving up the workaday world in favor of domesticity.

She has chosen Saturday, Oct. 4, as the date of her marriage to John Hornblower Meyer, son of Mr and Mrs. Alfred R Meyer of Greenwich, Ct., and Plymouth, and after a Bermuda honeymoon they will live in a new house in Cohasset.

Mrs. Herbert S. Tuckerman

Pre-wedding festivities include a dinner dance to be given the night before by Eleanor's brothers-in-law and sisters, Mr and Mrs. Paul Fox of Suffield, Ct., and Mr and Mrs Herbert S. Tuckerman of Beverly.

Mrs. Fox and Mrs. Tuckerman will be bridesmaids, together with Janet McKey, Boston; Mrs. David B. H. Martin, Beverly Farms; Mrs. Alfred R. Meyer, Jr., Plymouth. The flower girls will be Nancy Gannett, niece of the bride, and Virginia Meyer, niece of the groom.

The groom's brother, Robert Meyer of Plymouth, will be best man and Alfred R. Meyer, Jr., head usher. Also ushering will be Russell T. Fry, Elisha Atkins, Rochester, N. Y.; and Herbert S. Tuckerman, Beverly.

Eleanor belongs to the Vincent Club. During the war she worked at the Army Base and later was in the housing department at Harvard Business School. Her fiance is a Yale graduate and student at Harvard Business School.

BEFORE PACKING her bags for Bradford Junior College, Gail Falvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Falvey of Chestnut Hill and Swampscott, made her debut Saturday at a tea dance at Tedesco Country Club. She graduated from Beaver and is a provisional member of the Junior League.

Lavendar and purple summer flowers decorated the club and the debutante received in a wood fern green crepe dress and corsage of butterfly orchids. Her mother was gowned in wine crepe with wine orchids.

Ann O'Day, who crewed on Gail's sailboat this summer, headed the pourers, who were Caroline Ritchie, Helen Cox, Joan Shepley, Harriet Sprague, Nancy O'Neil and Joan Falvey. The ushers were Bronson Fargo, Richard Fitzgerald, Samuel S. Clapp, Ralph Colquet, Edwin C Jordan, Thomas S. Woods, 3d, John K. Williamson, William Moore, Edwin Stephenson and John H. Blodgett, Jr.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN C. ZIMMERMANN of Palos Park, Ill., formerly of Franklin, Mass., announce the marriage, Sept. 6, of their daughter, Bette Zimmermann, to William F Keep, son of Roy C. Keep of Chicago.

Guild Has Star Hopes for Roberta

Famous for discovering talent right under the very noses of the Hollywood movie moguls, The Theater Guild believes it will score again with pretty young Roberta Jonay, who was brought from the Coast studios of Paramount to play a leading role in "Allegro," the new musical play by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, which opens at the Colonial Wednesday evening.

Miss Jonay has been under contract to Paramount for almost five years, but has never received a really important role in any of her picture assignments.

In "Allegro," this attractive young lady not only acts, but sings and dances, and is on stage pretty nearly throughout the entire action of the show. She plays opposite young John Battles.

Others in the show include: John Conte, Kathryn Lee, Annamary Dickey, William Ching and a company numbering almost one hundred.

AUSSIES WIN 40-HOUR WEEK

MELBOURNE, Sept. 8 (AP) A full arbitration court has granted members of 53 trade unions a 40-hour week, effective next January. This is a cut of four hours in the 20-year-old 44-hour-week standard. Some 900,000 workers will be affected.

One-Pitch Ruin: Mystery Plane: Dinner Season, Etc.

By AUSTEN LAKE

"ONE PITCH CAN RUIN A BALL GAME," Billy Southworth pontificated at 1:45 p. m. Sunday. Fifty-five minutes later Red Barrett gave a perfect demonstration of the theorem by heaving a letter-high pitch to the Philly first sacker, Shultz, who tagged it over the left field whisky signs with Handley on base. With it went Red's ball game.

Military authorities nearby Boston are still searching for the pilot who "buzzed" Braves Field Friday night. Ex-pilots among the press and players were uniformly convinced that the plane was a single motored pursuit ship, which skimmed over the 90-foot light towers and came and went before one could say Cornelius McGillicuddy. The writer's impression is that it was a P-47, Thunderbolt, which has a peculiar "OOOo-wow" due to a four-bladed propeller. Whoever the pilot was, he needs a severe disciplinary lesson. Collision with one of those blinding light towers would have set several hundred gallons of gasoline aflame and killed a large part of the 18,000 crowd. It shouldn't be difficult to narow the suspects down to a handful by studying the night flying schedules of New England fields.

AT LAST THE HONEST baseball manager. Recently I asked Connie Mack if he thought the Athletics of 1947 had a pennant nucleus for next year. "O goodness gracious no," replied Connie using his worst swear, "we haven't got the hitting and fielding. We won't be anywhere near the race." Connie, rising 85, added a pessimistic note, "I don't think I can wait long enough to win another pennant."

Year ago in mid-September, mention of a pennant within Joe Cronin's earshot was akin to a shocking cuss word. Though the Red Sox led by 14½ games, Joe wouldn't concede the title as won. Yet 'tuther day Bucky Harris, whose Yankees lead by 10 games, told this paragrapher, "We're in all right. We'd have to get murdered to lose." Then when somebody remarked on the Red Sox string of injuries and illness this season Bucky snorted, "They don't know what a hospital list is. Only man who hasn't been sick or hurt on the Yankees this year is Lindell."

Prospects are that there will be public sale of tickets for the Duffy Lewis dinner at the Statler on Sept. 22. Application for seats among Duff's huge coterie of friends has almost exceeded the 800 capacity, with requests still pouring in. Few men can match the broad friendships made by the mild, unobtrusive Braves' secretary whose capacity for doing favors is only matched by his shyness in talking about them.

While on the subject let's not overlook Si Rosenthal Day at Fenway Park on Sept. 13. Si's claim to this community's attention does not stem to anything sensational in his brief career as a Red Sox outfielder. But he gave everything that a man holds precious during World War II, a son killed with the Marines in New Britain, and a wound from an exploding mine at Le Havre, France that paralyzed him permanently below the waist. The committee, headed by Clarence Barnes, John McCormack, Bishop Norman Nash and Rabbi Herman Rubenovitz hopes to raise sufficient funds from the sale of tickets (Arthur Copper's, 288 Boylston st. and Stuart Lmt, Stuart and Tremont sts.) to build him a home. It is what the old Transcript would have lised under its "Divers worthy works" column.

FOOTNOTE TO THE PROFESSIONAL Redskins-Rams game, which drew 80,889 paid admissions in Los Angeles Saturday, shows that the game officials penalized the teams a total of 176 yards. Time, and not so long ago, was when game officials stayed tactfully blind to the mischiefs of the pro footballers, who committed every atrocity in the book with a minimum of punishment. I remember at Redskins-Bears game at Fenway Park when the Chicago players stripped off the umpire's shirt and left him nude above the waist by way of reproval for some forgotten penalty. I recall, too, as one of the progame officials, warning a Redskins' lineman, after a 15-yard penalty for illegal use of hands, "If you do that again I put you on the bench," and his retort, "Why yuh 534c3 if I go off this field I'll take yuh with me, in a hammock." Officials had little control of the players, coaches and owners then, but under President Bert Bell, they have now. Reprisals are instant and swift to the game's all around betterment.

Leo the Lip Durocher told a friend lately that he has "two major league offers to manage next spring" and is waiting for the end of the current season to make his selection. Leo didn't reveal the names of the teams, but one is NOT Brooklyn. He said "Bert Shotten has a strangle hold on that job! But I'll be back in harness somewhere else." Seein's believin' Leo!

The native Irish press isn't too happy about the Gaelic Football League's exporting the Kerry-Cavan championship to the Polo Grounds New York, next Sunday. The Irish Times (Dublin) calls it a "vulgar, unsporting bid for American dollars . . . yet the cost of transporting teams and officials will eat up most of the profits even though there are more Irishmen in the New York area than in the 26 counties. Six hundred afficiandos are leaving Boston at 8 a. m. the morning of the game. An Irish sport announcer will aeriate the game back to Eire as a consolation to the embittered natives."

Would McCormick Deserve Batting Title If He Won It?

By HUCK FINNEGAN

Bob Pastor in the main bout, Joe Louis in the semi-final. Debs Garms in the Hall of Fame, Ty Cobb an also-ran. These were after-shave thoughts today as the Braves, who closed their short home stand with an 0-2 loss to the Phillies, entrained for Cincinnati. They concerned the batting championship duel between the Braves' Buck McCormick and the Phils' Harry Walker. McCormick, as you know, has supplanted Earl Torgeson as the Braves' regular first baseman so that he can get into 100 games and qualify for the league's top batting laurels. This is at Torgy's request. Buck has played 86 games, has 14 to go. He has performed only against left-handed pitchers.

There is a camaraderie among the Braves that is astonishing to behold. It is the main reason for their being as high as they are in the standings. It explains why Torgy was so anxious to assist his teammate in his bid for the toga.

McCormick has been a fine ball player. He was the league's MVP in '40. But he's never been higher than a 332 hitter, and his eight-year major league average is .299. Because of a back injury he was released unconditionally by the Phillies last spring. He came to the Braves, substituted for the inexperienced Torgy now and then, finally was used when southpaws worked for the opposition.

He's had a grand season, no doubt, and he's as nice a chap as you'll meet in the league. But does a substitute deserve a championship over a regular, such as Walker?

Did Debs Garms deserve the 1940 batting championship? When he was with the Braves (and they used to finish seventh) he couldn't make the club, playing now at third base, then in left field. Mostly he was immobilized on the bench. He was a utility man at Pittsburgh in '40 appearing in only 103 games and many of those only as a pinch-hitter. Yet his name is in the record book as the champion where regulars, playing with injuries because they were too valuable to sit on the bench as Garms did, were forced to play second violin. Is it fair? One of Garms' victims was John Cooney, now Braves' coach.

It is reminiscent of '45 when Tony Cuccinello, released by the Braves long before, made a comeback with the White Sox. He was nursed and coddled by Jimmy Dykes who openly proclaimed: "I'll use him in spots and only against pitchers I know he can hit. He'll play only one game of each double-header. He's going to win the batting championship."

But he didn't. The Yanks' Snuffy Stirnweiss won out with .309, and maybe it was just as well. Cooch never was a league-leading batter with the Braves or Brooklyn. Why, because he was used in spots, should he be with the White Sox?

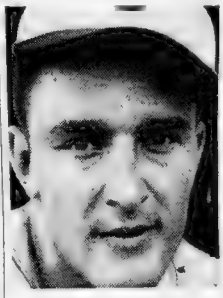
Leslie Mann used to hit about .600 against left-handed pitchers for the 1914 Braves, yet he never was awarded the batting title. He didn't deserve it.

Suppose Dick Harlow was to use Vince Moravec only against inferior opponents in the Harvard schedule, keeping him idle against Yale, Princeton & Co. Don't you think Moravec could average about 10 yards the rush? But do you think he'd deserve to be acclaimed the nation's No. 1 ground gainer when the rest of the backs were taking their bumps against the big boys?

It's time for a change in the N. L. scoring rules. The A. L. insists a batter be at bat 400 times before he qualifies for leading honors. It's a fair rule. McCormick has been at bat 227 times, Walker 475. Walker hits against both left and right-handed pitching, is in there battling day in and day out while McCormick is resting his aching back.

If Walker were to bat only against right-handed pitchers and had the benefit of a rest now and then, especially during the dog days of August, don't you think he might be hitting better than he's doing today?

Buck McCormick might settle the dispute himself by going hitless in the next 16 trips as he did in his three trips against the Phils Sunday. He could immortalize himself, if he does lead Walker, by simply stating: "I won't take it, I don't deserve it."



FRANK McCORMICK
In Position to Win Hit Crown

Schultz Hit Took Steam Out of Braves

Blix Donnelly didn't walk a man, didn't let a runner reach second as he pitched the Phillies to a 2-0 victory over the Braves before 13,233 Sunday patrons. "I'm myself again," he stated proudly as his teammates showered him with congratulations. "I'd have had more like this one if Mize hadn't hit me on the foot with a line drive" . . . Donnelly has won only three games this year, two of them against the Braves. His other victim was the Cubs. He's the lad who was such a sensation for the Cards in the '44 World Series against the Browns. But Eddie Dyer let him go on waivers last year, and it's a pity Southworth didn't get a chance to pick him up. He's got great stuff. He faced only 29 batters as he held the Braves to three hits, only one more than the A's Bill McCahan faced when he pitched his no-hitter the other day.

Only Brave who seemed to have a chance to reach second was Johnny Hopp. He opened the seventh with a single, feinted Wyrostek into throwing to first so that he could break to second, slipped after his turn and was nailed like a dead mackerel. It was a costly slip for Rowell, Elliott and F. McCormick were coming up, and it had the symptoms of a big inning . . . Oscar Judd beat the Cards five times last year and he says: "I almost prevented the Sox from meeting them in the World Series." The Phillies' southpaw used to pitch for the Sox . . . Culler made several fine fielding plays, chief of which came in the ninth when he crossed in front of Ryan to take Handley's roller and toss him out at first. Ryan didn't have a chance of getting Handley because he was going to his right . . . Ben Chapman, after a scouting trip, reports back to the Phillies Wednesday . . . Braves had a 14-8 edge over the season on the Phils. Their home record is 47-26.

It doesn't hurt so much when a Walker or a Slaughter beats you with his bat because they can hit. But when a banjo hitter like Howie Schultz belts a two-run homer, it gives you ulcers. Small wonder the Braves were down after the blow that killed Red Barrett. It came in the fourth inning with Handley on base. Otherwise, the red-head pitched a neat ball game. But that is like Jim Corbett outpointing Jim Jeffries all the way, only to be kayoed in the 24th round. It takes only one punch to beat you, and the former basketball player from Hamline provided the punch . . . Braves class is shown by the fact they haven't lost more than three games in a row all season . . . Their Sunday game lasted only one hour, 20 minutes, the shortest game of the Braves Field season. Something of a relief from the customary 1:30-7:00 double-headers.

Myers Ready to Test Eagles in Scrimmage

By LEO MONAHAN

Denny Myers, Boston College grid mentor, will have to make the most of this week's practice at Alumni Field since he will be limited to single drills when classes resume Sept. 15. Pleased with the Eagles' appearance after the opening week of training, Myers, however, realizes that he can waste no time if B. C. is to make a respectable showing during its nine-game schedule against some of the leading teams in the country.

The Eagle coach plans to hold his first scrimmage early this week, probably tomorrow. He should have a pretty good idea of his starting eleven after he watches them in action a few times.

After the opening week he seemed to favor a first team with Art Spinney and Angelo Nicketakis, ends; Ernie Stautner and John Kissell, tackles; Vic Palladino and Mario Gianelli, guards, with Ed Kennedy and Bob Chouinard alternating at center. In the backfield he had Ed Clasby, Ed Songin, Al Cannava and Jim Benedetto.

For the second team Myers had Chet Lipka and Roy Norden, ends; John Furey and Ed King, tackles; Art Donovan and Dom Papaleo, guards. Steve Stuka, Bernie Lanoue, Willie De Rosa and Bob Palladino were in the backfield.

"Kennedy and Chouinard are about on a par as centers," said Myers. "Kennedy's a better blocker but hasn't Chouinard's defensive ability." The two candidates probably will share the starting center duties this season.

Most of the passing and kicking plays that Myers ran through had either Ed Clasby or "Butch" Songin performing the punting and throwing so the boys probably will split those departments.

Chet Lipka is looking better every day and may become the first-string right end before the opener with Clemson (Sept. 26) . . . Myers moved Dom Papaleo up to the first team at guard when Vic Palladino was sidelined with a wrenched knee . . . Palladino is expected to report back early this week . . . Armando Provitola moved up to the second team guard slot when Papaleo joined the first string.

Kenny Hughes, third string quarterback, looked very impressive running back punts and eluding onrushing linemen . . . A member of last year's squad, Hughes has had little game experience . . . Maurice Poissant, Bernie Lanoue and Jackie Farrell will see a lot of action this season at halfback.

N. U. Guards Please Coach

Northeastern started its third week of football practice today but Coach Johnny Grinnell won't make any lineup commitments until he counts battered noses. The Huskies had their first major scrimmage last Saturday, and the carnage was terrific. Dr. George Lane, the team physician, will make his complete report before today passes.

Grinnell was pleased with the work of his guard squad, with newcomer Hal Shuman of Roxbury standing out particularly. Shuman played at Roxbury Memorial, but he has matured considerably since that time and now has real fire. He's a bear on defense, so he makes a good mate for little Joe Gramolini, who makes life miserable for slow opponents.

Not much has been said about the Malden guard veteran, Sid Glick, simply because Grinnell and line coach Ecioe Luciano don't have to worry about him. Sid weighs 193, knows his assignments perfectly, and is a coach's delight. He's equally good on offense or defense and should be one of the most dependable performers.

The fourth ranking guard, Bob Sharp of Weston, looked good on offense. He's big and has a good charge, so he's very helpful in the type of blocking required by the T formation.

N. E. Finals at Dilboy Field Wednesday

Amateur boxing will ring down the curtain on its outdoor season Wednesday night at Dilboy Field, Somerville, where the George Dilboy Post, F. F. W., will conduct the finals in the New England A. A. U. junior fight championships under floodlight.

Among the qualifiers, two outstanding matches are in promise with Hall Sullivan, Tewksbury, meeting Dick Callahan, Roxbury, in the welterweight class and Bob Gerard, Lynn, facing Lou Thrasher, North End, in the heavyweight division.

What Pattern Will NL Race Follow?

In the East the six-word query on every baseball bug's lips is "Can the Dodgers hold their lead?" In the West it is "Can the Cards catch the Bums?" according to the Associated Press. Thus another question comes to mind. What pattern will the present red-hot National League race follow—that of 1941, 1942 or 1946? In each of these years it was a neck and neck drive for the wire between those rowdy rivals with no quarter asked. This year is no exception. Following yesterday's games Brooklyn still led the Redbirds, but only by five and a half games with three weeks of the season remaining.

The Dodgers have 18 games left to play, but 14 of these are on the road. The Cards have 21 games left to play, 14 at home. Any combination of 15 Dodger victories or St. Louis defeats would clinch the flag for Brooklyn.

Just six years ago, the Brooks headed west for most of their remaining games just as they do today. They were enjoying a slight lead over the Cards. They went on to win 16 of their last 24 games while St. Louis was winning 14 of 25. The Dodgers copped the flag by two and a half games.

It was a different story the next year. After the first week of September, the Dodgers boasted a five-game lead over the Redbirds and appeared a cinch to repeat. They went on to win 14 of their last 24 games, but the Cards copped 23 of their 26—a phenomenal .870 clip—to grab the championship by two games.

A year ago today, the picture was decidedly different. The Cards, and not the Dodgers, were on top, leading the Brooks by a game and a half. Brooklyn closed fast winning 14 of 21 while the Cards were taking only 12 of 20 to tie for first at the end of the regular playing season.

The Cards had a wonderful opportunity to dig deep into Brooklyn's bulge, but blew it when they lost the second game of a doubleheader to the Cincinnati Reds in St. Louis. They already had routed Ewell Blackwell and whipped the Reds in the opener, 12-2, while the Dodgers were beaten by the Giants at the Polo Grounds, 7-6, to reduce Brooklyn's lead to five games. A win meant only a four and a half game difference, and best of all, only a three game deficit in the losing column.

But a southpaw slanter named Ken Raffensberger shoved them back on their heels with a nifty eight-hitter to twirl a 4-2 win for the Reds.

The Giants' big weapon, the home run, came to their assistance in their 7-6 conquest of the Dodgers. Johnny Mize clouted his 46th, Will Marshall his 35th and Buddy Kerr his sixth to account for six Giants runs.

The magic number for the pennant bound Yankees in the American League is now eight. Any such combination of Yankee victories and Red Sox defeats would end all mathematical chances of Boston for the flag.

The Yankees increased their lead to 12½ games yesterday by defeating the Senators in Washington, 7-1, while the Athletics were taking the measure of the Red Sox twice in Philadelphia, 7-4 and 4-3.

Hal Newhouser dropped his 16th game as the St. Louis Browns, behind the four-hit pitching of Jack Kramer, shut out the third place Tigers in Detroit, 3-0. It was only the third win in three years for the Browns over Newhouser.

The fourth place Cleveland Indians moved to within two games of second when they edged out the White Sox in Chicago, 3-2. Hank Edwards' 12th home run in the eighth inning off old Red Ruffing broke up a 2-2 tie.

Although he was knocked out in the third inning and his relief, Doyle Lade, received credit for the victory, right-hander John Miller, making his second start for Chicago, batted the Cubs to a 4-3 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Manchester Duels Nashua For N. E. Title

By the Associated Press

It will be an all New Hampshire final in the New England League's Governor Cup playoffs with Manchester's Giants playing the Dodgers tonight at Nashua in the first game of a best of seven series.

The Giants, who finished third during the Class B loop's regular season, reached the final round by downing the pennant winning Lynn Red Sox, 3-1, yesterday before 2489 paid fans at Lynn. It was the Giants' third victory in the deciding game of a five-game series.

The Dodgers, runnerup to Lynn in the regulation campaign, bested fourth place Fawtucket, their last victory an 8-2 affair over the Slaters Saturday night in the Rhode Island city.

Lefty Lou Lombardo had a lot of stuff yesterday as he limited the Sox to five hits, struck out two and issued only two walks. He was aided by sharp fielding and the potent bat of Joe Kosinski, who poled a home run for the first Manchester score and then singled home the second run.

Chuck Stobbs, recent Norfolk, Va., scholastic star pitcher, who had a 9-2 record in the regular season, was loser for Lynn.

League Pres. Claude B. Davidson had planned to have the first two games at Nashua, the third and fourth at Manchester.

Tigers Head For Fenway

Only a half game ahead of the third place Detroit Tigers who will be at Fenway Park tomorrow, Joe Cronin's Red Sox rested up today to think over their dismal showing against Connie Mack's A's in Philadelphia on the Sabbath. The Sox were walloped twice in the Friendly City, 7-4 and 4-3.

The only bright spot in the twin loss was that Ted Williams belted his 29th home run of the season in the 7th inning of the opener.

It was a local boy, Joe Coleman of Malden Catholic High, who was the undoing of the Red Sox in the opener. He pitched the A's to his sixth victory of the year.

A five-run blast in the second inning was more than enough for the A's. Ten went to bat in that inning. The A's collected two more runs in the third and then coasted to save themselves for the nightcap.

B. U. Linemen Let Backs Look Good

Sunday's sports pages told of the BU backfield and how it ran wild over the third and fourth squads, but the stories failed to give due credit to the Terrier line that held off all assaults. Not once throughout the two-hour scrimmage did it allow the "scrubs" to go beyond the midfield strip.

Outstanding was the work of end George Boston, former Harvard of last year, and Irving Heller, the 206-pound tackle from Revere. Both were in the opposition backfield throughout the scrimmage.

While the line was holding, the backs, at least a half dozen of them, were having much their own way. Outstanding were Bob Hatch of Melrose, Don Giles of Milton, Bill Tighe of Ashland, Johnny Toner of Nantucket and Ray Brickley of Everett, nephew of the Harvard immortal.

Tuna Record in Danger As Bluefins Make Run

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

PLUM ISLAND PT., Sept. 8—Tons of tuna have been caught in the waters of Ipswich Bay during the past few days, with the species running in the greatest numbers in a decade. Almost everyone, it appears, is catching the big bluefins, using rods and reels, handlines, or harpoons, the specimens averaging about 500 pounds each. More than 200 have been taken.

It's quite likely that the 1940 record tuna, a 927-pounder, gaffed by Dr. John Vernaglia, of Medford, may be topped, for the schools should remain in the Bay for another week or ten days—unless a no'easter drives the fish out to sea with a roar. One of the largest catches made recently was a 750-pounder, pulled in by Mrs. Katherine Robinson, of Ipswich, who battled the fish for three hours.

Anglers from New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, and many New England points, are in action, all hoping to boat a record-breaking tuna. The majority have been trolling bait, although several have tried chumming or drift fishing with whiting or herring.

"This is the best run since 1938," declared Al Kezer, well-known party boat skipper and commercial fisherman. "I've ironed over 60 tuna to date—the nicest season I've ever had." Al had two whoppers on rod and reel the other day, but lost them after a finny fray . . . His bait shack roof is adorned with tuna tails.

Over 100 tuna were brought into the beach here one evening last week, lined up on the sands, and dragged off to market in trucks. The spectacle attracted scores of onlookers, many of whom purchased some fresh tuna steaks.

In the excitement of the run, much tackle is being lost, we learned. Many novices are trying to land the big fish for the first time, and rods are snapping like match sticks. Handliners, too, have been losing their lines, hooks and baits—in one gulp.

TUNA TOPICS: "Red" Hilton, Lawrence, took his initial tuna; while Bill Blair, Lowell, christened his new craft by horsing in a bluefin, later hooking a large shark . . . Fred and Mal Hudson, operators of a boat station here, have caught their share, as has their skipper, Sid Fowler . . . Joe Colby, Plum Island, made his first rod and reel catch from his boat, the Nancy Mae . . . Frank DuGrenier, Haverhill, with his sons, Arthur and Frank, all gaffed tuna, averaging 600 pounds apiece . . . Alph Cote, Amesbury, tied into another 600-pounder, as well.

Anglers are still talking about the fishing feat turned in by Ben Smith, 2nd, of Gloucester, who boated four bluefins with rod and reel in one day last week. The fish weighed 580, 554, 290, and 588 pounds, respectively, for a total of 2012 pounds—a ton of tuna!

This would have been an ideal year for an Ipswich Bay Tuna Tourney, but such a run can hardly be foreseen.

Stranded Horsemen Banquet at Rock; Hold Outdoor Mass

SALEM, N. H., Sept. 8 — A day unique in the history of the North American turf was observed yesterday at Rockingham Park, where horsemen now are awaiting the opening of a 19-day emergency meeting next Saturday.

The horsemen, whose thoroughbreds now are quarantined indefinitely here because of an epidemic of swamp fever, were offered spiritual consolation by Rev. Father Patrick J. Keneally, pastor of St. Joseph's Church here, who celebrated the first outdoor mass ever held at a race-track on this continent. The mass was held before more than 500 devoted worshippers, including America's oldest active trainer, Ben Chapman, who stamped this the greatest experience in his memory.

It was followed by a field day, band concert, and New England shore dinner.

It was estimated that 1500 attended and the track paid all expenses.

A musical setting was provided, both for the mass and for the long, sunny afternoon which followed, by the famed Josof Gladysz and his band. More than a score of beautiful ponies took the squealing kiddies for rides, and a track meet was held for the youngsters, with prizes awarded by the Horsemen's Protective and Benevolent Ass'n.

Homeless

Former GI Kenneth Messer, of Bridgeport, Ct., holds his son, Kenneth, Jr., 15-months, while his wife feeds Sally Ann, seven-weeks, in their automobile which the couple parked on a Charlestown, W. Va., street. They announced they would stay at the curb until a home was made available.

'A Little Difficult'—Mrs. James Mc-a Daniels, 34, of Cleveland, O., casts a motherly eye over six of her ten children in the doorway of the City Park storehouse where they have slept on the floor for six weeks since being evicted from their home. She said sleeping on the grass for two weeks prior to that was "a little difficult."

Water Bearers—Carrying pots, pans, bottles and milk cans, these East Boston youngsters seek fresh water for their homes following break in the water main that serves East Boston, Chelsea, Revere, Malden, Medford and Everett. The break brought enforced drought to 30,000 residents. A 24-inch pipe of the MDC sprung a leak as it crossed the Chelsea Creek.
